STEMLINC

Highlights: First note- there is no option on the pull-down menu for STEM, and it was a required field, so I randomly chose "Operations". Our initial goal was to form a communication structure, solicit members, be officially approved, and come up with an official name. We have completed these tasks, and we are officially called STEMLINC at this point. We drafted bylaws, vetted them with others participating in STEMLINC, and are awaiting official approval by the Handbook Committee.

Planned events: Our first STEMLINC event took place on 2/5/16 at Elon University. We had over 30 attendees, and we had a couple of speakers and a tour of the Elon Makerspace. We have an upcoming event at UNCG on 4/29/16. Two panels are planned, as well as a tour of two different Makerspaces on campus. We have a skeleton event plan for July, and most likely another in October, given our commitment to quarterly get-togethers. We will probably discuss an off-year mini-conference in 2018 once we have our structure settled and officers elected.

Biennium goals reporting: We have drafted bylaws, and once they are officially approved, our next step is to ask for solicitations for officers and move ahead with elections. We are planning to have quarterly events, as stated above, so we are continuing to plan those as we go.

Collaboration request:

Detailed report: STEMLINC has continued the process of formalizing the Round Table and building interest and involvement with members. The proposed round table bylaws were completed; these were submitted to the Handbook Committee for consideration in March, 2016. Interest-building and engagement workshops are being held quarterly to bring librarians together for discussion; these workshops are free half-day events, and we are attempting to focus them around locations with Makerspaces and other STEM-engagement spaces to let participants see a variety of space designs. Our main focus at this time is creating a leadership structure and continuing to build conversation and interest around STEM librarianship issues. STEMLINC’s 2016 focus is on the STEM community, to solidify ourselves enough as a group that we will be prepared to bring strong STEM librarianship programming to the next Biennial conference.
